SCOPE OF WORK

The Special Investigating Unit (SIU) requests proposals from suitably qualified and experienced to develop Data Warehouse with Data Analytics functionality to meet the data and information storage, processing, management, and governance needs of the Special Investigating Unit (SIU).

1.1. A robust data warehousing system is a critical asset that differentiates the SIU from other market players. The SIU's data warehousing capabilities enhance value and drive cost savings for other organisations by ensuring that data is:

- Dynamic, accurate and relevant,
- aggregated and/or disaggregated for various business processes within an organisation,
- modelled for future-proofing new initiatives or improving current activities,
- integrated with historical and/or inter-organisation datasets.
- Transactional and predictive; and
- supplemented with information regarding risk and mitigation plans.

1.2. To leverage these capabilities effectively, analysts at various levels within the organization require access to a comprehensive data warehouse. This system allows users to retrieve, access, and join data from diverse sources, facilitating everything from simple statistics to complex descriptive, prescriptive, and predictive analyses.

1.3. The SIU gathers data from multiple national, provincial, and local government departments, as well as various state-owned enterprises, municipalities, and municipal entities. Therefore, a sophisticated data warehousing solution is essential to accommodate all data sources and formats, enabling the SIU to make informed decisions and enhance its strategic initiatives in the anti-corruption sector.

1.4. Implementing a robust data warehouse system would significantly enhance the SIU's reporting capabilities in several ways:

- Centralized Data Repository: A data warehouse consolidates data from multiple sources into a single, unified platform. This centralization streamlines reporting by providing analysts with easy access to comprehensive datasets, reducing time spent on data retrieval.
- Improved Data Quality: Data warehouses often include data cleansing and validation processes. By ensuring that the data is accurate, consistent, and up to date, the reports generated will reflect reliable information, leading to better decision-making.
- Enhanced Analytical Functions: With advanced analytical capabilities, a data warehouse can support complex queries, data modeling, and trend analysis. This allows for more sophisticated reporting, such as predictive analytics and scenario modeling, which can inform strategic initiatives.
- Real-Time Reporting: Depending on the architecture, a data warehouse can facilitate near real-time data processing. This capability enables timely reporting, allowing the SIU to respond swiftly to emerging issues and adapt strategies as needed.
- Customizable Dashboards and Reports: Data warehouses often come with business intelligence (BI) tools that allow users to create custom dashboards and reports tailored to specific needs. This flexibility enhances the ability to visualise data effectively and communicate insights to stakeholders.
- Historical Analysis: By integrating historical data, the SIU can conduct longitudinal studies and trend analyses over time. This capability is essential for understanding long-term patterns in anti-corruption efforts and measuring the impact of initiatives.
- Increased Collaboration: A centralized data warehouse fosters collaboration among different departments and stakeholders by providing a common platform for data access. This leads to more cohesive reporting practices and shared insights across the organization.

1.5. The tools must also permit all our analysts to access this data and allow for interrogation and integration (adaptable querying by the analyst without being a technical expert) with different outputs, such as exceptions reports.

1.6. The key functionality of the toolset must include (but is not limited to) the ability to:

- Ingest data from various data sources,
- Transform data,
- Load Data into a data warehouse,
- Manage data in the data warehouse,
- Extract Data from the DWH into Datamart's ("DM"),
- Perform data queries,
- Perform data stratification,
- Sample extractions,
- Identify missing sequences,
- Statistically analyse data,
- Perform calculations,
- Identify duplicated transitions,
- Create pivot tables,

- Conduct cross tabulation.

1.7. The solution must cater for (but is not limited to) the following (detailed requirements are contained in Annexure B)

- Ability to Integrate with other of systems e.g., Microsoft SQL
- Be Scalable & Perform optimally.
- Deployable on-premises, to a private cloud, native cloud, or a combination of the aforementioned,
- Provide for Data Governance capabilities,
- Provide for the complete Data Life Cycle
- Enable and ensure Data Quality
- Provide for Visualisation (Business Intelligence) – Dashboard
- Provide Data Analytics Capabilities as described above.

1.8. The proposal must provide for:

1.8.1. Support and Maintenance:

- Support (on-premises or remotely)
- Locally (in South Africa) based maintenance and support teams,
- Formalised training and skills transfer.

1.8.2. Implementation

- Provide a detailed Project Plan that sets out the project phases & activities, team members, duration of the activities and the hourly/daily rates of team members.
- Provide a detailed composition of the team in terms of roles, responsibilities, location (domestic or abroad), % on-site vs. off-site, user group composition (e.g.: functional group, technical group, business group etc...), the pre-requirements (skills) for the people composing the group and the % allocation to the project (or hourly breakdown per month).

1.8.3. Summary: Implementation of a Data Warehouse

Definition: This phase refers to the actual deployment and operationalization of the data warehouse system. It focuses on putting the developed system into action and ensuring it runs smoothly.
